

USING COPYRIGHT PROTECTED MATERIALS FOR TEACHING PURPOSES AT SFU

Using a short excerpt?
Follow these fair dealing guidelines.

Want to use more?
Use one of these exceptions from the Copyright Act.

TEXTUAL MATERIALS

You can copy up to 10% of the work OR:
1 chapter from a book
1 article from a journal issue
1 article or page from a newspaper issue
1 entry from a reference work (e.g. encyclopedia, dictionary)

AUDIO AND VIDEO MATERIALS

You can copy up to 10% of the work OR 1 track from an album, as long as you are not breaking a technological protection measure (TPM).*

IMAGES

You can copy 1 image from a compilation (e.g. coffee table book, atlas) OR up to 10% of a stand-alone image (e.g. painting, poster, wall map). You cannot copy an entire stand-alone image.

MATERIALS FOUND ON THE INTERNET

You can copy a short excerpt up to the fair dealing limits according to the type of media you find on the Internet.

ONLINE RESOURCES LICENSED BY LIBRARY

Licences for online resources govern how they can be used. For details, see SFU Library Databases and the Electronic Journals database on the SFU Library website. Contact your liaison librarian with any questions.

TEXTUAL MATERIALS

You can reproduce the entire work for display in the classroom or for use in exams if a copy in the required format is not readily commercially available.

AUDIO AND VIDEO MATERIALS

You can play the entire work (e.g. dvd, cd) in the classroom.

IMAGES

You can reproduce the entire image for display in the classroom or for use in exams if a copy in the required format is not readily commercially available.

MATERIALS FOUND ON THE INTERNET

You can reproduce an entire work from the Internet (e.g. website content such as an image or text) and communicate it to your students, as long as you are not breaking a technological protection measure (TPM)* and there is no "clearly visible notice" prohibiting copying.

ONLINE RESOURCES LICENSED BY LIBRARY

Licences for online resources govern how they can be used. For details, see SFU Library Databases and the Electronic Journals database on the SFU Library website. Contact your liaison librarian with any questions.

If you don't see your use on this chart you may need to obtain permission from the copyright holder and include a statement of this permission in the citation. Contact copy@sfu.ca for assistance.

SFU employees have the responsibility to abide by Canada's Copyright Act and by the university's own copyright policies

Under fair dealing you may copy and communicate, in paper or digital format, a short excerpt of a copyright protected work for the purposes of research, private study, education, parody, satire, criticism, review or news reporting as a:

- class handout
- email message
- posting in Canvas
- part of a course pack sold through the SFU Bookstore.

Copying multiple short excerpts from the same copyright protected work, with the intention of reproducing amounts beyond the fair dealing limits, is prohibited.

Examples of technological protection measures (TPM) include passwords and regional encoding.

These guidelines apply to teaching at SFU only. All works copied must be legally obtained. Works must be properly cited. 02/2014
